Grading system

Grade A or Excellent . outstanding and exceptionally thorough competence in theoretical and applied aspects of the subject, free and creative application of acquired competence, extensive independent work, comprehensive knowledge of special literature;

Grade B or Very good . very good competence in theoretical and applied aspects of the subject in the extent of the syllabus and the content of textbooks, very good skills in application of acquired competence. The examination has shown errors of a trivial scope which are not of principal character;

Grade C or Good . good competence in theoretical and applied aspects of the subject, good skills in application of acquired competence. Uncertainty and lack of precision in aspects concerning more complex and detailed parts of the subject;

Grade D or Satisfactory . competence in the more important theoretical and applied principles, facts and methods of the subject and skill to use them in typical situations, whereas noticeable gaps and uncertainty are manifested. The grade may be considered to be sufficient for normal continuation of studies;

Grade E or Sufficient . the student has acquired a minimum level of competence, but serious shortcomings in application of acquired competence are manifested and hinder the acquisition of subsequent subjects based on the given subject;

Grade F or Fail . student lacks a minimum level of competence.

The examination or a preliminary examination is considered passed upon its grading in the range from E to A. An examination or a preliminary examination is not considered passed if it is graded with an F. Non-differentiated assessment of academic results of students in subjects or parts of subjects is conducted by defining the positive result as ~~P~~Passq and negative result as ~~F~~Failq
